Stamps To Aid Needy

by Karen Bradley

How many trading stamps have you thoughtlessly discarded? STOP! WPGC, a Maryland radio station, desperately needs all the trading stamps they can get.

W P G C has teamed up with the D. C. Welfare Department to try to make this Christmas a little happier for hundreds of under-privileged kids in Washington. The rest of the year, these children exist on a very minimum of food, clothing and shelter; they live in squalor and ignorance. Saddest of all --- they accept it without protest or even question. W P G C and the Welfare Department are trying to relieve their misery a little for the holiday season.

They are asking for trading stamps of any kind, any color and any amount to use to buy toys for needy children who would otherwise be forgotten on Christmas morning. They are doing a tremendous job, but of course, can't do it alone. If you have any stamps lying around, send them to:

It might make your Christmas a little happier and more meaningful to know you helped.
